Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

High pressure building over California will result in dry conditions and above normal daytime temperatures across northwest California through the rest of the weekend. Monday through Thursday there is a slight chance of thunderstorms over inland mountains.

San Francisco Weather:

A ridge of high pressure will remain in place above the surface which will keep dry and seasonable conditions for the next several days. Temperatures will cool today and Sunday with a stronger sea breeze expected but it will remain hot across interior areas yet cooler on the coast. A quiet weather pattern should continue with dry weather and warm temperatures.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

This weekend into next week, the forecast area will have above normal temperatures with daytime highs topping 100 in most valley locations this weekend. The Sierra Crest will see a threat of thunderstorms Sunday through much of next week and possibly as far north as the Shasta County Mountains on Wednesday.

Hanford Weather:

High pressure will remain anchored over the Desert Southwest through the middle of next week. This will result in continued warm temperatures across the forecast area. Southerly flow around the high pressure will bring monsoon moisture increasing the threat of showers or thunderstorms over the Southern Sierra Nevada by Sunday and continuing for much of next week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure will remain anchored over Arizona and New Mexico through much of next week. Monsoonal moisture will bring a slight chance of afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms to the mountains and Antelope Valley through Sunday. Night through morning low clouds and fog will continue in most coastal areas spreading locally into the valleys. Temperatures will be slightly above normal in most forecast areas through the end of next week.

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

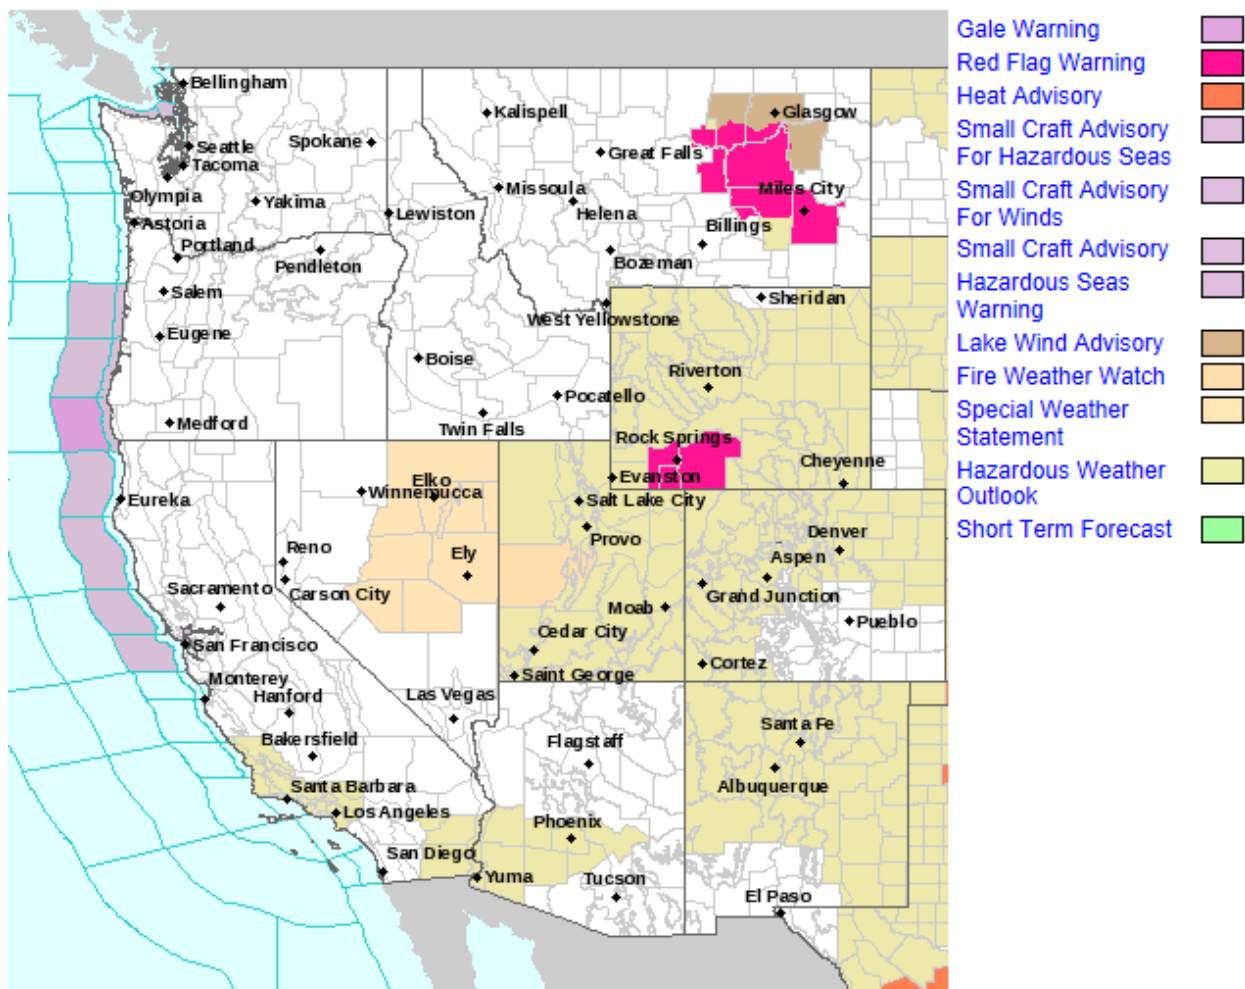

High pressure to the east will bring seasonally warm summer weather through next week. Monsoonal moisture will bring periods of isolated to scattered thunderstorms this weekend over the mountains and deserts in the afternoons and early evenings, with smaller chances for thunderstorms on Monday. The marine layer will keep coastal areas cooler with areas of night and morning low clouds and fog extending into the western valleys. The marine layer will become shallow starting Tuesday with night and morning clouds mainly in the coastal areas.

Southeast California Weather:

Monsoon moisture will remain across the region through at least the middle of next week with a chance for afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms each day. Daytime temperatures will still hold above seasonal normals but are expected to remain below the near-record readings the forecast area had earlier in the week.

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

- On 7/15/14 the State Water Resources Control Board passed a new emergency regulation to reduce out door urban water use. The regulation makes an exception for health and safety circumstances. Local agencies can ask courts to fine water users up to $500.00 a day and the SWRCB can fine water agencies up to $10,000.00 per day. The adopted regulations are expected to go into effect by August 1, 2014 and remain in effect for 270 days.
http://www.waterboards.ca.gov/publications_forms/publications/factsheets/docs/emergregsurban_fs072214.pdf
- Current Reservoir Levels continue to decline. Pine Flat had a 4% decrease from last week. Levels as of July 22: Don Pedro 46%; Exchequer 22%; Folsom Lake 43%; Lake Oroville 37%; Millerton Lake 55%; New Melones 27%; Pine Flat 19%; San Luis 25%; Lake Shasta 36%; Trinity Lake 38%; Pyramid Lake 92%; and Castaic Lake 46%.

Situational Summary

- On July 15, 2014, CDFA in partnership with U.C. Davis Center for Watershed Sciences released a study titled Economic Analysis of the 2014 Drought for California Agriculture. The study indicates the drought in California is the third most severe on record and is responsible for the greatest water loss ever seen for the state's agriculture, and river water for Central Valley farms has been reduced by roughly one-third, according. Direct costs to agriculture total about $1.5 billion (which include revenue losses of $1 billion and $0.5 billion in additional pumping costs). This net revenue loss is about 3% of the state's total agricultural value

- The 2014 Governor Drought Task Force continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
